Environmental objects such as doors, desk drawers, and switches on machines must be opened or manipulated using realistic movements that mirror their use in the real world, and certain obstructions can only be cleaned using certain objects in a specific way, for example, in order to solve one of the game puzzles a player can choose to stack boxes and barrels in order to allow the player to be able to jump through an obstacle, such as an electric fence, or reach a certain normally very high area to reach. Essential for solving puzzles is the ability to read written notes scattered around the mine by its previous inhabitants, which often offer clues or solutions on how to pass through a particular area, in addition to providing plot exposure and character development. The player also has access to a notebook where important information and the objectives and objectives of the players are recorded.
